The ranch hand had five steers get away from him and he knows if he can't get them back, he will lose his job. After two days and nights looking, he stumbles across an old goldminer cooking up a rabbit down by a creek. He asks the old goldminer "have you seen any lost cows around?". The goldminer replies "haven't seen any lost cows anywhere what so ever?". The ranch hand then asked him if he was having any luck finding gold. The goldminer then tells him that a few days earlier while working his claim, Indians snuck into his camp and stole his horse and either stole or set fire to everything that he had. The goldminer then asks the ranch hand "if you help me drive the five steers I came across today to the market in town, then I can grub steak myself, buy another horse and then come back with you and help you find the cattle that you lost. That's what started the gunfight."
